WARLERS HOLD
MACK'S SLUGGERS

Present Dope Indicates New York Boxmen Have Edge on Athletics Unless Youngsters
Come Through With Rush.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—A week more of major league play, a week or ten days following to settle the world's championship, and the baseball season of 1913 will have passed into history. The past week saw the pennant contests in both National and American leagues settled beyond dispute and arrangements for the big series between the New York Nationals and the Philadelphia Athletics for the title duly made and promulgated by the National commission. Accordingly the real "crucial" series of the year will open at the Polo grounds, New York, on Tuesday, Oct. 7, and be fought out there and at Shibe park, Philadelphia, until the winning of four games gives either the Giants or the Athletics the right to inscribe the legend "World Champions, 1913," on the club's banner.

The Giants were a good bit slower in clinching the flag honors in their league than were the Athletics in theirs. For this the persistency of the Phillies on the one hand and the unevenness of Cleveland on the other, were largely responsible. The Mackmen's final and finishing blow was struck last Monday at Philadelphia when the Detroit Tigers were artistically blanked in a seven game series and thereby made it impossible for Doolin's men to win out even should McGraw's earnest but just now weak hitting warriors lose all their remaining games.

Ingloriously, the Giants lost on the day the pennant was won, but it was none the less effectively won, the Giants third successive pennant, and the seventh in the club's history. The Athletics' triumph gave them their fifth championship flag.

Struggle to Be Hot.

The coming struggle between the two teams, representing the last word in baseball ability, as tested by the long grind of a season's campaign, bids fair to be one of the most interesting yet in the series of contests for world laurels. The Athletics and the two teams is not greatly changed from that of two years ago when the Athletics got the better of the series by four games to two. Experts generally figure a decisive game will be played by the Mackmen, chiefly through the loss of Jack Coombs and a corresponding gain by the Giants through the addition of Tetreau and Demaree to the home staff, while Mathewson and Marquard still remain to counter Bender and Plank. This leaves out of the reckoning however the large group of Philadelphia colt pitchers, any one of whom may unexpectedly come through with a brilliant performance and possibly turn out to be the star of the series.

Recent performances by the two clubs of course do not indicate what they may do in the coming encounter. It is interesting to note however, that while the Athletics have effectively worked out of the batting slump which affected their pennant chances at one time, and they vigorously belaboring the ball in old time style, the Giants have not shown a corresponding return to the hitting form that produced when the team was needed. Last week, for instance, McGraw's averaged only 3-13 runs to the game while the Mackmen were amassing an average of nearly seven.

Conservation of pitching talent has already been pointed out by the canny leader. He gave his veterans a good rest last week. Bender not showing once on the mound, and Plank only for a few innings. In one game, McGraw had to play out his own strength, while Mathewson and Marquard came through with sterling performance. Demaree was less successful. All of the quartet showed signs of being given just enough work to keep in condition for the big job ahead of them.

With a week of the season remaining several clubs are in position to each major league remains to be settled. Chicago in the Nationals still has a chance to overhaul Philadelphia, but the outlook for the Cubs finishing above the third place is not as bright as it was a week ago. The Pirates are settled in fourth place.

Senators Second.

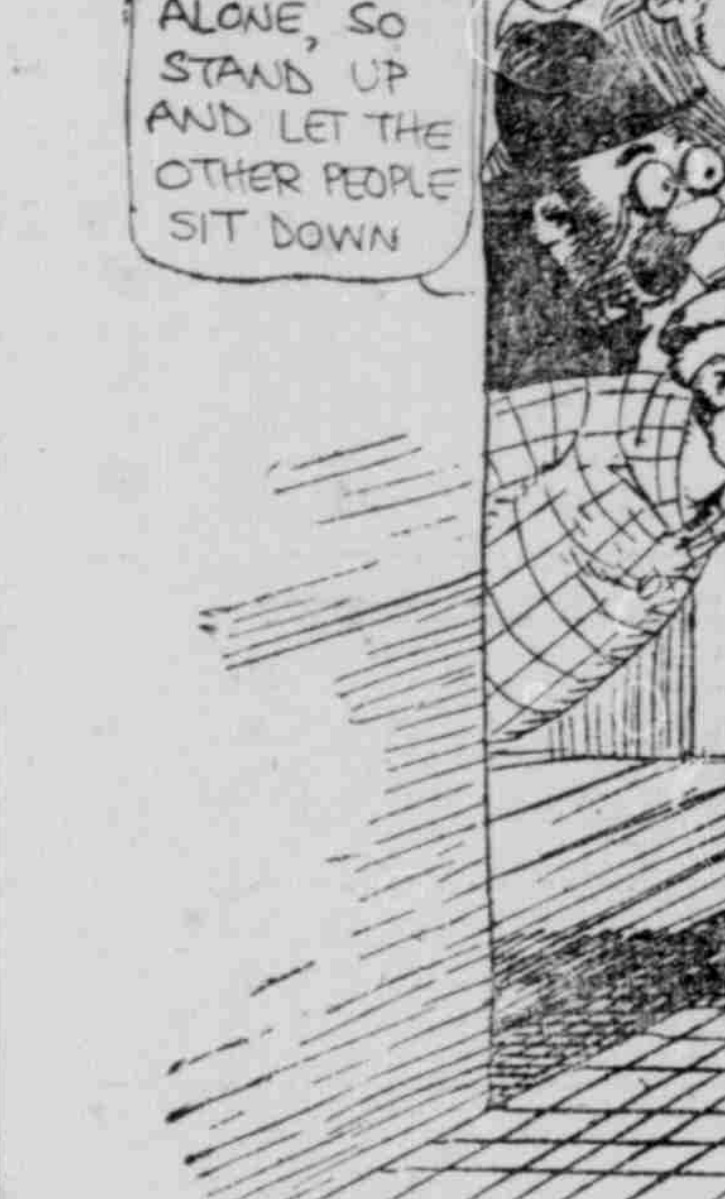

In the American league Washington after being beaten in a series by the Browns took vengeance on the New Yorks winning three straight at the Polo grounds and thereby getting a hold on second place as the Cleveland's continued their slide and lost three games out of four. Boston and Chicago stood practically stationary and the fourth place contest is still an open one.

The batting duel between Ty Cobb and Joe Jackson was watched with interest during the week. The Cleveland leader needed a bunch of hits to overcome the lead in points that Cobb had over him, but it was Cobb and not Jackson who got the prize collection. Ty Cobb finally won it by hitting twenty times during the week and hit safely in twelve instances for an average of .600. Jackson on the other hand had a poor week of it for him, hitting safely only four times in 14 times up, an average of but .285.

In the National there is a pretty fight between Daubert and Cravath for leadership among the regulars. Daubert having a slight advantage when the latest unofficial averages were compiled.

Bowling is taking a very peculiar angle this season. It is erratic in the extreme and it is difficult to assign a reason for the strange antics. The sport is assuming from various angles. Because of the handicap system in vogue in the various leagues now in operation in the city it would naturally be expected that the big allowance men would have an advantage over their more experienced rivals but the dope does not figure out that way. At the Studebaker club there has not been a respectable score in the into the secretary's office for record during the two weeks of play that the present schedule has been in operation, either individually or collectively. The conditions are of the very best as the alleys have been resurfaced and otherwise placed in first class condition by experts, the equipment is of the highest order and there are quite a number of skilled artists on the rosters of the several clubs, yet the results so far obtained are indeed very discouraging.

Quite similar conditions exist at the Elks temple where the Antlers and Elks leagues have been running for the past three weeks. Here and there a vein of rare form is displayed but in the main the work of the stars is far below that of their years at this period of the season.

Tails-Tusks Brush Frantic.
The classiness of the week was that between the Tails and Tusks in the Antlers league, in which the latter pulled two games out of the first although they were beaten in the aggregate by 27 pins. The Tusks showed 1,055 in the opening and followed with 1,047, the second game being five pins better than that of the Tails, two crackjack games. But the Tails came back in the final with 994 and topped. But thanks to rolling 3,925 for the series and losing two games.

In direct contrast to this battle was that of the Fawns and Bucktails, the latter winning three games and not one of them showing better than 888. This is getting by with some lucky wins and the result has placed the Bucktails in a tie with the Teeth for the leadership of the league. As the Antlers lose two games of their set with the Bucks the former were eliminated from the van. Another event of the week was that of the champion Prongs obtaining absolute possession of the cellar position in the percentage column.

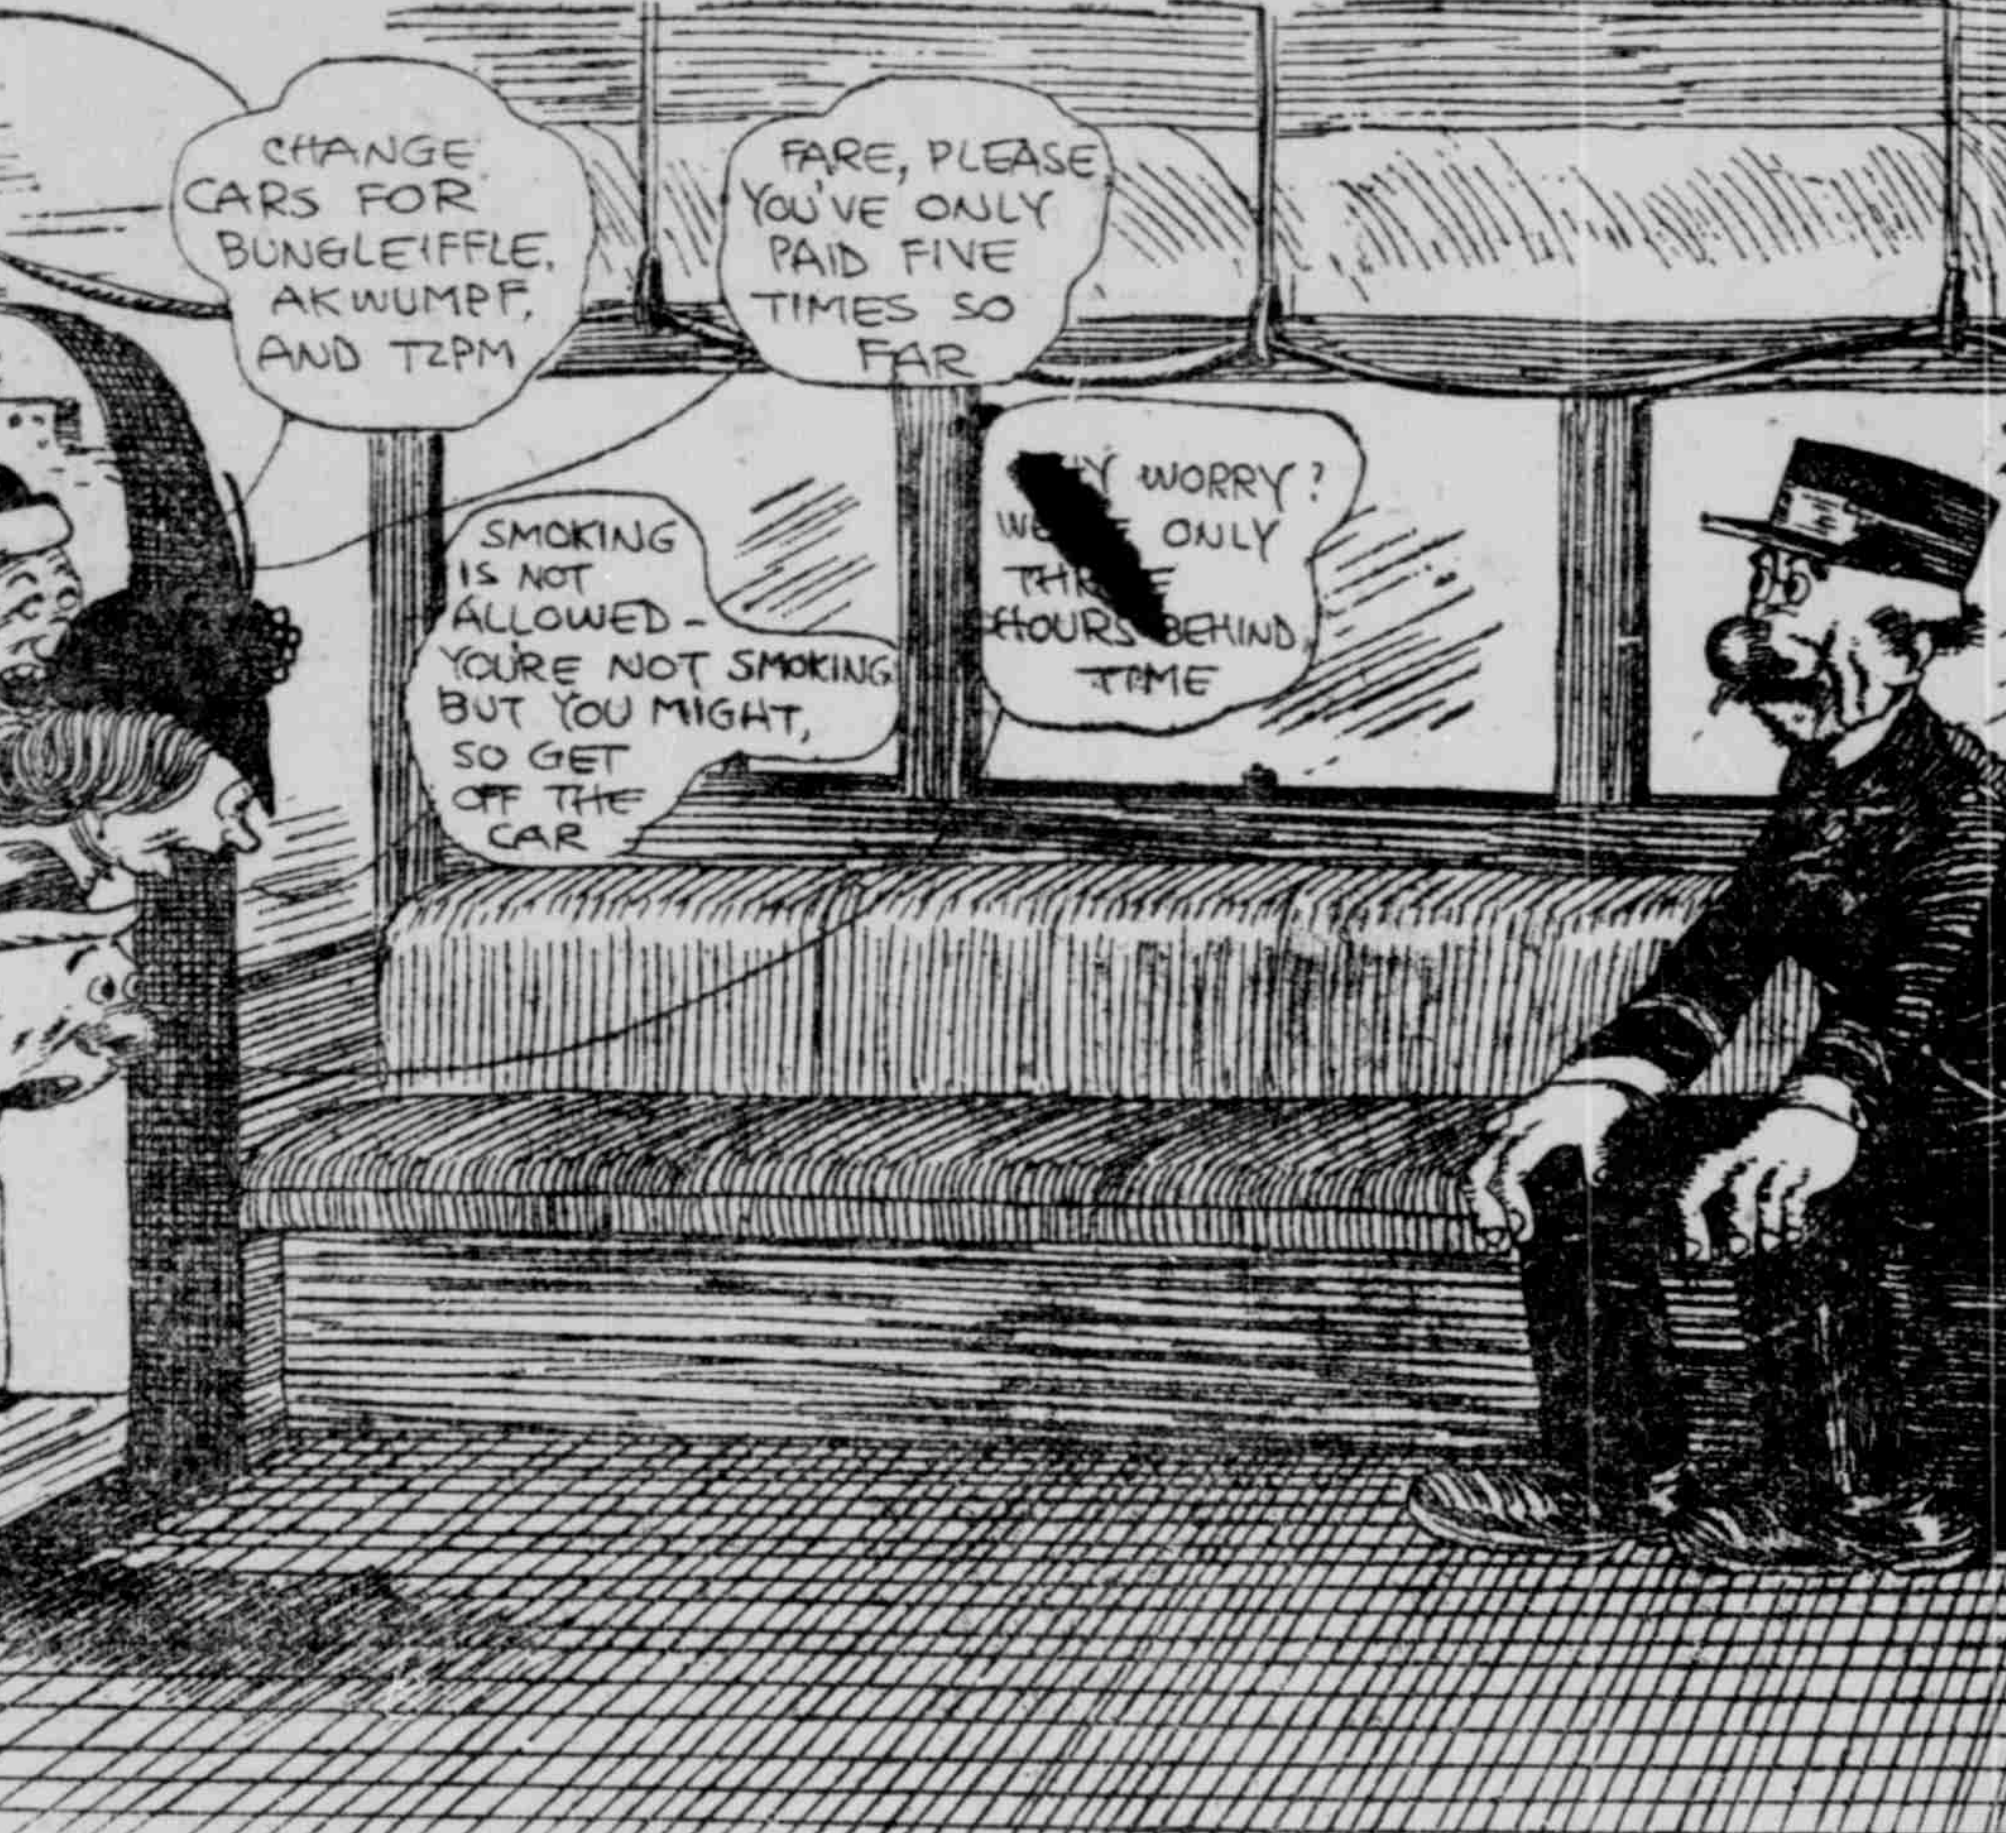

Toasts Perfect Score Bustled.
One of the interesting events of the week was the breaking of the perfect score by the Toasts, although they still retain sole ownership of the top rung in the club standing. This club showed some fine work individually. Lucas, Kauffman and Herdman showing fine double century scores. Herdman going to 245 in the final and collecting more than twice as many pins in that game than his captain, showing splendid individualism. But the team was quite as inconsistent collectively for they only posted 848 in the opener.

A serious reverse, losing three straight games to the Tails, pushed the Chariots from second place to the second division, permitting the Bills, Deers, Stags and Hoofs to pass them and this happened with the Stags losing game. But this only serves to give the percentage column a better appearance and will have its influence to stimulate interest in the organization. A desperate effort was made by the Hoofs and Tylers to pull out of the rack but they were in vain.

Crippled Wings of Leaders.
Where four of the ten clubs in the Studebaker league sported perfect percentages a week ago not a single one of them survived the onslaught of their opponents during the past week. But this only serves to give the percentage column a better appearance and will have its influence to stimulate interest in the organization. A desperate effort was made by the Hoofs and Tylers to pull out of the rack but they were in vain.

Cocked Hat League Shows.
For the first time this season the appearance of a regular standing in the community and henceforth they will be treated just like others of the clan. The reason of their oblivion in spite of the noise they made is explained that they played the first two weeks under a blind handicap. But their disguise was removed by the bowling committee and a provisional handicap given to the players, which will continue during the remainder of this month. When the allowances were adjusted and the hoodwink removed the percentage column made its report like every other league some club leading while another brought up the rear. The Nationals with the first citizen at the helm, led the way while the ferocious Tiger brought up the rear, having chased the others out of their way temporarily.

BREWERS WIN ONE AND CLINCH FLAG

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 29.—Milwaukee clinched the 1913 pennant of the American association by winning the first game of Sunday's double-header with Louisville, 3 to 1. Louisville took the second game, 3 to 0. The second contest was called after the first half of the sixth inning on account of darkness. Both teams played snappy plays. Milwaukee won the first contest in the ninth inning, making two runs on a single, two bases on balls and a wild pitch by Toney who relieved Loudermilk in the final inning. Toney held the visitors to three scattered singles in the second game.

BROWNS TAKE FIERCE BATTLE

DETROIT, Sept. 29.—Veatch dropping Aknew's high fly in the tenth inning enabled St. Louis Sunday to defeat Detroit in a desperate pitchers' battle. The score was 3 to 1 and neither team made a run until the tenth inning. Two left-handed recruits, Brown and Williams, pitched. Williams had the better of the duel until the ninth when he weakened. Until that influence the only hit he allowed was Ward's single in the fifth. The only St. Louis player to reach first base until the ninth was Gus Williams, who drew a base on balls in the fifth. St. Louis threatened in the ninth, when Agnew and Austin singled, but Bush prevented scoring by throwing out Pratt.

Walker opened the tenth with a single to left. Williams attempted a sacrifice, popped to Onslow and Rislund grounded to Bauman. Walker advancing. Wares then dented the left field fence with a double, scoring Walker. Agnew's fly, which Veatch dropped, followed and Wares went home. Brown singled to left and Veatch made a beautiful return to the plate but Gibson allowed the ball to bounce through his legs. This enabled Agnew to produce the Browns' final tally.

NILES BEATS ALL-STARS

DeRose Lifts Ball Over Fence For Two Homers.

It was a hot and exciting game Sunday afternoon at Niles when the All-Star aggregation from South Bend was defeated 3 to 2. Neither team succeeded in putting a run across until the fifth inning. Then DeRose of Niles electrified the fans by lifting the ball over the left field fence for a home-run. The All-Stars did not score until the seventh inning. Walker, Agnew's fly, which Veatch dropped, followed and Wares went home. Brown singled to left and Veatch made a beautiful return to the plate but Gibson allowed the ball to bounce through his legs. This enabled Agnew to produce the Browns' final tally.

In the ninth, DeRose repeated his stunt of the fifth, again drove the ball over the left-field fence, bringing in a man on first and winning the game.

Don't Kill Themselves at Old
Monte Carlo as They Used to

BY R. L. GOLDBERG.

MONTE CARLO, France.—I am sorely grieved and terribly disappointed. I have been in Monte Carlo for 48 hours and have the following confessions to make:

First—I have seen nobody take poison.

Second—I have heard no pistol shots.

Third—I have not seen the bank go broke.

Fourth—And I have not lost my shirt.

Of course, it has been my misfortune to visit here out of the suicide season. This is purely a winter resort, and the druggists do not expect to sell any great quantities of Paris green or rough on rats at this time of the year. Some day, when the crops are good and trunk checks are plentiful, I shall come back here in the winter and see the undertakers at the height of their glory.

Money is a Joke.

Meanwhile I must content myself with the pleasure of going into the magnificent casino and edging up to the tables with the other out-of-season boobies who have no sense of the tragic.

Monte Carlo is without a doubt the closest approach to the Elysian Fields of anything this side of the next world. It is a huge garden on the edge of the Mediterranean. Before you are here for half an hour you are ashamed of yourself for ever having argued with your grocer about the price of a dozen eggs.

As you wander among the deep shadows of the peaceful pathways that wind about the cliffs overlooking the fortress of Monaco the value of money rapidly dwindles to zero. You can throw a $1,000 bill, if you have a thousand dollar bill, into the sea and write a poem about it before it touches the water. The sweet strains of music floating over the palms ripen you for anything that may happen after you enter the gambling palace.

The cashier's window in the home office is a place where poor salaried employees go to collect small sums like hundreds of dollars. You are ashamed that you ever stuck your arm through the iron bars to sign your name to the pay roll. You own the world.

As I entered the casino a man wearing a trick hat and a sorrowful expression told me I would have to go to the desk and get a card. I told him I hadn't yet been dealt a hand so naturally could not draw a card. But I took another look at his hat and went to the desk.

Strange Things.

The man at the desk looked at the label in the back of my coat. He then put on a pair of strong glasses and examined my pocketbook. Then he felt my pulse. After asking my name and the birthplace of my grandfather, he asked for some mark of identification. I pulled my faithful letter of credit. There was not much left of it in real money, but it served the purpose. Anything that looks official has a very soothing effect in a foreign country.

He gave me a card of admission. I checked my hat, coat and goat and went inside.

Every roulette table was running at top speed. Wild-eyed Frenchmen and dark-eyed women stood silently watching the little ball. Every few minutes a man with a rake in one hand yelled "Passe or Manque," or "Pair or Impair," with a few other garbling noises thrown in for good measure. He then raked in all the money on the table and sent his assistant out to order another steam yacht for the Prince of Monaco.

You can't stand there long without instinctively digging down into your pocket and pulling out the money you had put aside for Venetian lace and Dresden China and Turkish cigarettes. I didn't understand the language. I didn't have to. You lose either way. I stayed long enough to buy a new tire for the dealer's automobile.

A shabby looking individual with a face like a tramp juggler suddenly jumped up from his chair, growled something very expressive at everybody present and walked away. I asked my neighbor if the angry party was going out to commit suicide. He said he didn't think so, because he had won 12,000 francs. He was sore because the cashier handed him a soiled bill.

As I eased toward the door I passed a number of people with little red books in their hands. They were watching the numbers as they came out and putting them down in mysterious order. They were the "system" simps. They have been standing there for years figuring out how to beat the game. They still have a lot of pencils to use up.

The man at the desk did not question me as I went out. He had lost interest in my grandfather.

HUEBNEERS BEAT
CENTURYS 49 TO 0
IN OPENING TILT

Start Season Auspiciously and Have Good Chance at City
Championship Title—Michigan City Next.

The Huebner football team opened its season Sunday afternoon at Springbrook park by defeating the Century's by a score of 49 to 0. Had the Century's been a trifle heavier the final score might have been different, as for a light team they put up a strong game, but could not cope with the heavy backfield of the Huebners.

The Huebners, if they can continue in their present stride, should be able to lay claim to the city championship, and probably that of northern Indiana. In Sunday's game they showed up strong in every branch. Both on open field and in the scrimmages they acquitted themselves in good fashion.

Vargo was the real star of the afternoon. His passing was good and he ran the team well at all times, moving his plays in such a bewildering manner. He also landed a goal from the field from the 30-yard line. Boits, at end, was good on receiving passes.

The Huebners will play Michigan City at Springbrook park next Sunday.

MUESSEL-NATIONAL GAME ENDS IN 0-0 TIE

Although Outweighed 25 Pounds to Man, Beer Men Put Up Stiff Game.

In a very close and exciting contest the Muesel and National football clubs battled to a scoreless tie at Oliver field Sunday afternoon. Outweighed almost 25 pounds to the man, the Muesel men put up an article of speed and skill that completely bewildered their heavier opponents. It seemed more than once that the heavy and consistent plunging tactics of the big men would result in a touchdown, but at each danger point the smaller team, with remarkable staying power, held until the ball came into their possession. Godacz, Pierzynski and McKielki did the stellar work for the Muesels. Pierzynski from his position at full, did some of the prettiest forward passing seen on local grids for some time. The attendance was estimated at 1,500.

PLAY TO SCORELESS TIE

Frederick Stars in Gergacz-Budweiser Struggle.

Battling to a 0 to 0 tie, the Gergacz and Budweiser teams played a brilliant game of football at the St. Joseph hospital grounds Sunday afternoon. Fredericks of the Gergacz team was the individual. His terrible line plunges tore great holes in his opponent's line, and brought gasps from the large crowd which saw the game. Grau and La Fortune were the particular stars of the Budweiser eleven. The two teams showed a deep spirit of rivalry and are eager to get at each other again.

The Budweisers are desirous of scheduling a game with the Irish Regulars or Nationals. For games call William Grau between 6:30 and 7 p. m. Bell 2733.

SOX END HOME SEASON
BY DEFEATING NAPS

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—The American league season in Chicago was brought to a close Sunday with a shut out victory 1 to 0 for the local club over Cleveland.

Weaver scored the only run of the game. Lajoie fumbled his grounder in the sixth inning and after making a wild throw to first allowed Weaver to reach second. Lord grounded out and Weaver took third and scored on Collins' out.

The game was a pitchers' battle between Cleteo and Falkenberg with the former having the better of the argument.
